One useful result

Build a clear question-and-answer page from real customer uncertainty. Work through one lesson at a time, then use the three printable worksheets on a real, low-stakes situation.

Your route through this mini book

1. Collect the questions behind hesitation

2. Answer the question first

3. Give changing facts an owner

4. Test whether the answer reduces uncertainty

Read the lesson, compare the worked example and complete the action. Pages 7-9 are writing sheets; page 10 helps you review the result. The editable Markdown companion contains the same prompts for reuse in a notes app.

For personal learning and practice. Examples are fictional; adapt the worksheets to your situation.

Collect the questions behind hesitation

Start with questions customers actually ask before buying. Look at permitted enquiry records, staff notes or your own conversations, keeping personal details out of the draft. Separate a question about fit from one about price, delivery or support. The most useful FAQ reduces uncertainty; it is not a place to hide a sales pitch in question form. If you do not yet have customer evidence, label a question as a hypothesis to test.

Worked example

“Will this printable work for a seven-year-old who needs reading help?” concerns fit. “How do I get the file after payment?” concerns delivery. These deserve direct answers rather than the same promotional paragraph.
